

Business System Assessments

Whitehouse has twenty years of experience working with JD Edwards systems. Whether you want to carry out an application assessment, a technical audit, take advantage of new functionality or migrate to EnterpriseOne, we offer the most experienced technical and applications consultants in the business to assist you.

When companies first go live, they typically use only a fraction of the functionality and capabilities built into their JD Edwards enterprise software applications. As their business environments change, new demands on the software may require current set-ups to be amended, unused functionality to be tapped or system performance to be enhanced.

Whitehouse offers a comprehensive series of business system assessments for JD Edwards application and technology environments and user communities. This results in recommendations of ways in which companies can enhance functionality, boost performance and improve the user skill base.

How can you identify whether your system needs reviewing?
Ask the following questions, which are good indicators that action should be taken.

- Do your personnel perform manual tasks that could be accomplished using the JD Edwards system?
- Have your business processes changed significantly since you first implemented the JD Edwards solution?
- Has there been employee turnover of key individuals who managed your JD Edwards system?
- Are you planning to add new JD Edwards software or an upgrade related to your system (JD Edwards software, hardware, database, etc)

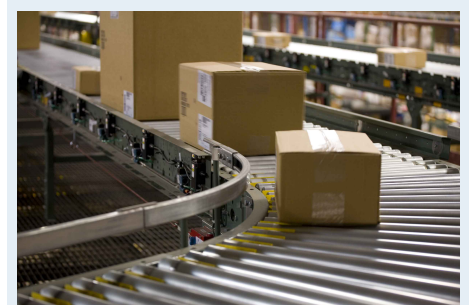

Business systems assessment services include:

Comprehensive application review examining World or EnterpriseOne software financial, distribution and/or manufacturing applications, including any specific pain points, reporting systems and user training requirements.

Technical reviews for World or EnterpriseOne system environments including CNC server configurations, database, IT infrastructure, solution management procedures and IT support personnel.

User skills and training assessment reviewing your current in-house skill set to utilise, operate and support your JD Edwards system, as well as a comprehensive report on critical skill gaps and recommended training by named user and/or user-roles.

Integrity report checking to identify and resolve any issues highlighted such as unposted batches, missing batch headers etc.

Business System Assessments

Security review - Necessary in these days of greater compliance requirements, as system security can be out of date or incomplete, thereby exposing the system to unauthorised access and risking improper use.

All the reviews are delivered by senior-level Whitehouse JD Edwards consultants who have the expertise and experience to uncover hidden potential in your applications, and to ensure that your system is stable and meets compliance requirements.

At the conclusion of the assessment activities, our consultants will provide a detailed written report and presentation of their findings, specific recommendations and courses of action to enhance your JD Edwards applications and deliver improvements for your business.

The Whitehouse Difference

The overall objective of any of our reviews is to assess the effectiveness of the JD Edwards solution in place today, taking into account functionality used and user knowledge, and the potential for improving the solution's efficiencies across the organisation. Whitehouse can carry out an assessment on your current software, or we can consider the added functionality in a later version to help you decide whether to upgrade.

Please contact us to discuss your situation and learn more about the ways in which Whitehouse Consultants can help you.
